

ABOUT THE FACULTY

The Faculty of Croatian Studies at the University of Zagreb was launched in 1992 and obtained the status of a faculty on 10th December 2019. Today, higher education at this faculty takes place within our eight departments:

- Communication Studies
- Croatology (Croatian Culture)
- Demography and the Croatian Diaspora
- Educational Sciences
- History
- Philosophy and Culturology
- Psychology
- Sociology

Research and teaching at the Faculty of Croatian Studies focuses on the interdisciplinary study of traditional and contemporary culture, identity, humanities and social issues related to the Republic of Croatia, the Croatian population and its diaspora. The topics include concepts of culture, politics, migration, intellectual history and reality, public and personal media communications, activities of social groups, human experience and behaviour, education and upbringing, language development, and relevant political, cultural, social and demographic issues of national, regional or European interest.

UNIVERSITY OF ZAGREB FACULTY OF CROATIAN STUDIES

WHY STUDY AT THIS FACULTY

- ☺ The Agency for Science and Higher Education, in cooperation with foreign experts, declared in 2015 that the Faculty of Croatian Studies was the best rated institution of higher education in the social and humanities fields in Croatia.
- ☺ Teaching at the Faculty takes place in smaller groups of students, which enables professors to clearly define the focus of their teaching, adapting to the interests and needs of the students while recognising their attitudes.
- ☺ Numerous students at the Faculty are involved in extracurricular professional activities including drama groups, student associations, participation in scientific research projects, and work in the media, state institutions and the business sector.
- ☺ Only this Faculty has an objective to research and investigate Croatian society, state, space, population, diaspora, culture, and civilisational and cultural heritage within the European and worldwide context, as well as to cultivate Croatian national and cultural identity.

University of Zagreb has signed an agreement with the Central State Office for Croats Abroad. It stipulates the college admittance quotas for Croats outside of Croatia with the aim of returning Croats and Croatian descendants to Croatia. Thus, the Faculty of Croatian Studies reserves a place for the enrollment of 53 students, each year, from the younger generations of Croats outside of Croatia, members of the Croatian diaspora and Croatian minorities. The costs of full-time study are fully subsidized from the State Budget.
